

Bouncing quantum cosmology and non equilibrium perturbations

Patrick Peter

Institut d'Astrophysique de Paris

France

Quantum cosmology in the trajectory approach can be used to describe non singular extensions in which a bounce follows a contracting phase before the currently observed expansion. I will discuss some such cases based on the FLRW or Bianchi I background before arguing that perturbations could have been produced in a quantum non-equilibrium state with possibly observable consequences in the CMB.