

Abelian Symmetry Breaking and Modified Gravity

Javier Chagoya
University of Swansea
United Kingdom

Self-interactions of vector fields that break an Abelian symmetry have interesting consequences for gravity. For example, in a decoupling limit they offer a candidate for dark energy, while in the full theory they have effects on the geometry of spacetime around standard scenarios, like static cosmic strings and black holes. These characteristics will be discussed in this talk.